In a scenario, Elijia is a manager, who is responsible for investigating the market of game planned to develop, can register his own account. After that, with entering the name and password to login the website, the Dashboard webpage will display some important attributes of the top10 17K Mobile Strategy Games currently. Additionally, this webpage will present some different diagrams of various data relationships. And then he presses the button of start engine of predictor at the left side of this page, the next webpage will ask him to provide the detail of game price, size, genre and player age range. Finally, the service will response the predicted downloads to him as the reference data at the bottom of the same page.